

Abstract of the Disclosure

A data processor is disclosed for digitally signing electronic documents. The data processor is disposed within a secure housing. The data processor also has a display. Data to be digitally signed is displayed on the display in a secure fashion to ensure that what is displayed, once authenticated, is what is digitally signed. In order to authenticate the document, the data processor includes a transducer such as a fingerprint sensor.

10